BC Winter Games 2022 (2020), Time to Register for Trials

If you're a youth athlete born in 2005, 2006, or 2007, and you shoot in the compound, recurve or barebow categories, then you'll want to try out for your Zone team and attend the BC Winter Games! Our webpage has been updated with Trials dates and other information. Most Zone trials are scheduled for December 4 or 11. Check the website for details on when your Zone trials will be held and how to register.

Things to note:

- Athletes may participate in more than one Trials event. However, in order for a score to count for team selection, this must be declared at the beginning of the event—prior to ANY arrows being shot. That score will be the one that counts. (In other words, an athlete cannot shoot a bad score and withdraw, nor can they shoot a good score and then ask at the end of the tournament to have it submitted.)
- An athlete may attend Trials in any zone if unable to attend in their home zone.
- All Trials participants must hold a current BC Archery membership.
- Team selection will occur after all the Trials events have completed and athletes will be notified by January 6th if they were successful in earning a spot on their Zone team.

Contact your Zone coach with any questions about the Trials. For general questions about the Games, contact the Provincial Advisor.

CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS CLUB ENGAGEMENT COMMITTEE

We are recruiting volunteers for a new committee that wants to better engage archery clubs in the province. Are you interested? Send an email to the address below.
